The rave of the community: Networking!

But the smell of success could be very, very contagious. They came to Southern California, to introduce a business, no longer real estate. Otherwise, it would be a complete Waterloo for them, but the hand of divine intervention guided them with their business goals. They realize — with their resourcefulness and imagination — that Filipinos are mushrooming and an opportunity to build a niche apropos to their {our} culture and well-knit families. Entrepreneurship is also a trait that Filipinos are skilled because they want to add more income to build their respective nest eggs...this is because part of the money saved will be for the future — to use for the advancement in their higher academic attainments, and to help rehabilitate and bring food to the table for the big family.

Here's the beef: Mrs. Evelyn Brandt strongly and convincingly explained to me that I have nothing to lose, but many wealth of experience and motivation from the speakers, motivators, and speakers. Food, winning good raffles, and surprises to show to an overflowing crowd some retirees, accountants, nurses, sales peoples, entrepreneurs, merchants, and much, much more.

"It's our way of responding to a crisis. No money," enthused Evelyn.

"There's nothing wrong with that...I'll be going and be seeing you as my sponsor."

The attendees started to arrive, some guests, and some already enrolled or trained as part of a growing networking growing professionals. The first part was that of partaking food and drinks, before entering the room fully visible with laptops, paper work, and the power point boards and the disco neon sparkling light. These were all orchestrated to function during the marketing presentation.

State's annual nonfiler program begins

SACRAMENTO — The Franchise Tax Board (FTB) announced today that it has begun contacting more than 900,000 individuals who earned California income, but failed to file state income tax returns last year.

Since the 1950s, FTB has contacted individuals who may have a filing requirement, but have not filed a tax return. These individuals will have 30 days to file their state tax return or show why one is not due. When a required return is not filed, FTB issues a tax assessment using income records to estimate the amount of state tax due. The assessment will include interest, fees, and penalties.

FTB identifies nonfilers by using more than 350 million income records it receives annually from third parties such as the IRS, banks, employers, state departments, and other sources.

In addition, FTB uses occupational licenses and mortgage interest payment information to detect individuals who have not yet filed.

Last year, FTB collected more than $550 million in revenue through these efforts.

For those receiving notices, information is available at ftb.ca.gov, by searching for "Request/Demand for Tax Return." Taxpayers can request more time to respond, retrieve information that can assist them in filing a tax return, request tax forms, learn about payment options, sign up to receive an email reminder to file, and much more. Individuals can also call FTB at 866.204.7902 to get information. ■
